COLLEGE FOCUS

Information: 4.01 – College Focus

Senior Vice President Ruth Watkins introduced Dean Henry White who gave a report on the College of Science. Dean White reported that the College of Science consists of four departments. Over the past few years the college has seen a growth in faculty due in part to the USTAR initiative. Dean White highlighted some of the remarkable faculty in the college including six members of the National Academy of Sciences, nine American Academy of Arts and Sciences Fellows, twenty three distinguished professors, and ten Rosenblatt Prize recipients. The college has seen an increase in enrollment over the past four years, and continues to be top producers of Science Majors, particularly in Chemistry and Physics. Dean White mentioned the college faces challenges in declining state support, low federal funding rates for research, poor physical infrastructure in college departments, retention of top-ranked researchers, and funding of education programs. Other challenges the college faces are 36 percent of college freshman aspire to major in the STEM fields but less than 9 percent graduate with a STEM degree. Currently the University of Utah has the lowest support for graduate teaching assistants in the PAC 12 schools. The Dean noted that the college needs additional funding for graduate teaching assistants to be competitive in the PAC 12. The college has hired Dr. Jordan Gerton, Director for Center for Science and Mathematics Education (CSME) to help increase student retention, increase graduation rates and help K-12 STEM education programs. Going forward, the College of Science will strategically think about research funding, engage the alumni base for development funds, and on the educational front work to improve undergraduate retention by increasing teaching assistants and advising. They will continue to grow their graduate program.

A copy of the PowerPoint presentation is included as Appendix III with the official minutes of this meeting and is on file in the office of the Secretary to the University.
